The Embassy Cotonou is pleased to announce an open competition for organizations to submit applications for a grant from the U.S. Ambassador's Special Self-Help Fund (SSH). The application period for grants is open until July 1, 2020. You will find a detailed description of SSH grants below. Please read it carefully in order to see if your project falls within the grant guidelines. If it does, please consider submitting application package, in English. Please note that incomplete application packages will not be considered. Only English language applications will be considered.

Program Description and Objective

The SSH program is aimed at assisting Beninese community groups to develop lasting, self-sustaining projects that significantly impact communities by addressing critical health, social, and development concerns. Each year, Embassy Cotonou supports approximately six to ten projects with small grants, typically under $5,000. These grants have contributed to agricultural modernization, economic development, combatting early marriages and gender-based violence, improving sanitation, women's empowerment, improving learning conditions, and providing greater access to clean water, health services, and education.

Eligibility

SSH projects are for community-based groups or organizations, initiated locally, and administered at the local level. To qualify for an SSH Fund grant, projects must involve significant community contribution in the form of funding, materials, and/or labor. Applicants must have the ability to manage SSH projects independently and complete their project within twelve months of signing an SSH agreement.

Consideration will be given to projects with the following qualities:

- Foster community self-reliance;
- Have significant community participation and contributions - volunteer time and labor, donated land, equipment, and/or materials;
- Deliver measurable results (e.g. show how activities led to positive changes within the community);
- Help improve basic economic, social, and/or health conditions at the local community or village level;
- Fall within the ability of the local community to implement and maintain into the future;
- Respect environmental norms for small projects and will not adversely affect protected or other sensitive environmental areas nor jeopardize threatened or endangered species and their habitat;
- Can be completed within one year; and
- Are viable and sustainable in terms of finance, support, and necessary expertise and services.

Some examples of what SSH has been used for:

- Water Projects – boreholes, irrigation, or water collection systems; storage tanks.
- Hygiene and Sanitation Projects – pit latrines at schools and clinics; training on health and nutritional best practices; disease screening and vaccinations.
